Message From Reclaiming Earth Committee

As we continue to reflect on integral ecology. Remember that spirituality is a component and prayer is vital.

“We are called to contemplative involvement in our world” (#9, Constitution and Rules Of Sisters of St Dominic-Tacoma)... “Our response in faith to God’s call is expressed in both our personal and communal prayer.” (#10)

“Union with Christ in prayer allows us to meet him in faith and love; this awakens us to the Spirit, and leads us to discover the presence of God in the exercise of our ministries.” (#36)

“We plan, carry out, and evaluate our apostolic activities at each level through dialogue and discernment, in the context of the nature and mission of the community, and the needs of the Church and the world.” (Rule 10.2, Constitution and Rules approved 1985 Sisters of Providence)

Can you see the connections of our prayer as women of faith to integral ecology? In terms of ethics, morality, spirituality and science, integrated through prayer and action, we have been living integral ecology for the good of the whole.

Can you see specific actions in your own lives that are foundational to both congregations and associates? Think about it.

Would you please reflect and suggest a project that we could do communally that would demonstrate our integrated care for our common home or that would help to deepen our awareness of and spirituality in this area?
