Message From Reclaiming Earth Committee

In his book: “Reality, Grief, Hope: Three Urgent Prophetic Tasks,” Walter Brueggemann writes (in 2014): “In the midst of near-despair, the prophetic task is to articulate hope, the prospect of fresh historical possibility assured by God’s good governance of the future.” (Pg 119)

“Waking up to our fundamental relationship with the cosmos will be a means of reengagement with life. The Journey of the Universe enables us to connect more deeply with the universe and the earth of which we are a part. In doing this, we will appreciate the need for a sustainable human presence on the planet.

“Thus the integrated story of the origin and development of the universe, of earth, and of humans could become an inspiring story for our time. This is because this story is giving us a sense of common evolutionary heritage and shared genetic lineage. This new understanding of the kinship we share with each other and with all life could establish the foundations for rediscovering our past and sustaining the future.”

“Spiritual Ecology,” Mary Evelyn Tucker and Brian Thomas Swimme (Pg 57)

“Let us sing as we go. May our struggles and our concern for this planet never take away the joy of our hope.”

Laudato Si’ (Par 244)

Keep in mind, that during this season of giving up, letting go, and grief, we are blessed with multiple prospects for hope. We have only to reach out and take hold.
